GREEN PANTS

by Kenneth Kraegel

Green Pants is a pitch-perfect ode to individualism and the sometimes necessary need for conformity.

Use Green Pants in your classroom to talk about compromise, decision making, and being true to oneself.

GREEN PANTS

- Ask students if they have an item that makes them feel brave or comfortable like Jameson's green pants. Have them describe or draw the item.
- Divide students into groups to discuss why they think green pants made Jameson feel comfortable/safe.
- Talk about compromise and ask students if they have ever had to make a compromise like Jameson did in order to be in the wedding. Have them write about their decision and how it made them feel.
